

Building High Performing Organisation through Visionary Leadership

During- 15-19 December 2024 at Port Blair

Introduction

The high performance organization (HPO) is a conceptual framework for organizations that leads to improved, sustainable organizational performance. It is an alternative model to the bureaucratic model in which there is a gap between Responsibility and accountability. There is not a clear definition of the high performance organization, but research shows that organizations that fit this model all hold a common set of characteristics. Chief among these is the ability to recognize the need to adapt to the surroundings that the organization operates in. High performance organizations can quickly and efficiently change their operating structure and practices to meet needs.

New research has found that the key to high-performance and growth is to be found in the psychology & culture of an organization rather than in the mechanics. So the important work is in shifting the mindsets, emotional states and behaviors to a psychology that will create and deliver performance. However, most businesses focus the vast majority of their energy, attention and resources on the mechanics. The collective psychologies of your people is, of course, the culture. Culture, like brand, is misunderstood and often discounted as a touchy-feely component of business that belongs to HR. It is not intangible or fluffy, it is not enough just to have an amazing product and a healthy bank balance. Long-term success is dependent on a culture that is nurtured and alive.
