Introduction

Knowledge is the capacity for effective action. It caters to critical issues of organisational adaption, survival and competence in face of increasingly discontinuous environmental change. The ability to manage knowledge is becoming crucial in today's knowledge economy. The creation and diffusion of knowledge has become increasingly important factor for organisational success.

Resurgent Indian economy along recent Geo Political changes has created new challenges for every organisation. The expectations from the organisations are changing very fast. Existing knowledge, ideas, work systems, programmes, products may not be able to deliver the desired results particularly when India's GDP is poised to become third largest in the world. If the managers are to be effective, they can no longer be content to let the change occur as the it will. They must be able to develop strategies to plan, direct and control the change to the advantage of the organisation and lead knowledge workers who have different expectations. Keeping above in view the programme has been designed to provide inputs for knowledge management to proactively develop strategies, plan to take advantage of fast changing environment and become knowledge leaders.
